REMARKS:—

FOREWORD

In presenting this work for the consideration of buyers, the Pittsburgh Industrial Development Commission has endeavored to perform a service to the community in general and to local manufacturers and jobbers in particular. The enormous and unparalleled growth which has been enjoyed by manufacturers in the Pittsburgh district is so well known that the stupendous task involved in the classifying of the commodities manufactured and sold in this district can be readily appreciated.

The sole purpose has been to make accessible to immediate reference every commodity that Pittsburgh can provide.

Recently, at the expense of this Commission, the first census of the Pittsburgh metropolitan district was compiled, showing that $365,000,000 is spent annually for material by local manufacturers alone. Not all of these materials are supplied by local producers, and buyers are often ignorant of the fact that certain commodities, for which they are not regularly in the market, are readily available at home.

It is not commonly known that the manufactured products of the Pittsburgh district exceed those of any one of twenty entire states. Moreover, the fact is not generally known that the diversified products of Pittsburgh, exclusive of all metals, glass or electrical products, exceed the entire product of twelve individual states. These facts make it apparent that such a work as this has been a long deferred necessity. Approximately 20,000 commodities are listed in this book, representing the products of more than 1,600 manufacturers and nearly 800 jobbers; the classification of jobbers being restricted to those who carry stock on hand.

Stimulated by the efforts of this Commission there has recently been established a co-operative spirit in the community and a public desire to patronize home industries, when such patronage would not be prejudicial to good business practice. Unfortunately, however, it has not always been possible to exercise the desire because no complete directory has ever before been available covering the many thousands of commodities which the community produces. For the purpose of making it possible for Pittsburghers to patronize themselves this book is offered. For the further purpose of making it possible for the manufacturer generally to appreciate Pittsburgh's contribution to the welfare of mankind this book is also presented. It is the further intent of this Commission to have this work translated into Spanish and other tongues for the purpose of stimulating and encouraging export trade.

The work herein presented is a contribution of the Commercial Clearing House Department of the Pittsburgh Industrial Development Commission. This department has for its special function the consideration, adjustment and reconciliation of such difficulties as may arise in the pursuit of the commercial activities of the community. The functions of this department include the giving of information concerning products produced in the district; the adjustment of differences whereby local commodities suffer because of quality, or price, in competition with other communities. Every purchaser, jobber, manufacturer or consumer, in this or any other community, is privileged to avail himself of the services of this or any other department of this Commission without obligation.

It is the firm conviction of the Pittsburgh Industrial Development Commission that this work will be the vehicle through which the jobbers and manufacturers of this district will find commercial stimulus and thereby serve to promote the progress and preserve the prosperity of Pittsburgh.
